Lawyers, judges to rock House of Blues July 11

What do lawyers and judge do in their spare time?

Well, some of them play guitars, drums or keyboards in bands for a healthy psychological diversion.

Four rock bands — all fronted by area lawyers and judges — will “jam for justice” from 5-8 p.m. July 11 at the House of Blues in a fundraiser for the Legal Aid Society of Cleveland.

- The John Hanley Band features attorneys Luke Lindberg and Ryan Kennedy.

- Rule 11 and the Sanctions is an all-attorney band comprised of Jonathan Leiken, Deanna Reish, Robert Walker, Daryl Williams and Andrew Fiorella.

- Just Us features Lorain County Common Pleas Judge Jim Miraldi and other attorneys from Lorain County.

- Faith and Whiskey is composed of Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Mike Donnelly and attorneys Steve Zashin and Rich Wesorick.

An all-star jam will close the show, celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Rolling Stones — and the landmark legal case of Gideon v. Wainwright. For the last 50 years, the Gideon decision guarantees access to an attorney in criminal cases, but there is no “civil Gideon,” or right to counsel in cases where life, liberty and property are at stake. That’s the mission of Legal Aid — to secure justice for low-income clients.

Tickets for the event are $40, which includes food, drinks and music. They are available at lascleve.org or by calling 216-861-5590.
