THE SUN COMES OUT ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 2006

Sun News. Really, really local.

barrier

の

YOUR SUN NSIDE

By David Plata Staff Writer

watch

close under

3

NDEX

87th Year, No. 38
Classified C6-16

in this time of your life Travel scenic paths ROAD TRIP Prime, CI

It's authentic Italian OH, MY! that's done with taste Our recommendations in county judicial races Scoop du Jour,' C5 VOTE-WORTHY Thornton, Heder are good old 'Scoundrels.' NEW 'SCHOOL Intermission, C3

By Mary Davies Staff Writer

Event

ngs

noise

By David Plata Staff Writer

The noise will still be there, but people living nearby won't hear it.

That should be the result once the Ohio Department of Transportation installs nearly five miles of noise abatement walls along a stretch of Inter-

$5.8 million contract has been awarded to Great Lakes Construction and Chagrin Valley Engineering, an architectural firm designing walls. Barriers will go from about West 150th Street to Bellaire Road on the north side and West 150th to Memphis Avenue on the south.

"This is something that residents of this area have been waiting for 30 years," said

Sen. Dale Miller, D-23, of Cleveland, who as a state representative asked for a noise study to determine traffic impact in the area. "It's a happy day to see this ready." The

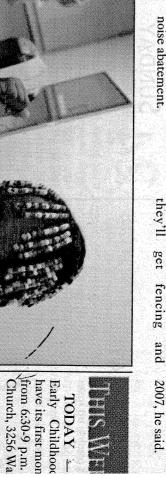

The ODOT study two cars ago showed the stretch f highway has an average oise level above 67 decibels – the threshold needed for Councilwoman Dona Brady, D-19, said, "I'm ecstatic about this. I started the lobbying for this the summer of 2001. We're talking about six years that we've waited. It's well worth it."

Brady said residents
Hirst Avenue opted out having the walls install along their street. Instea they'll get fencing ar street. In t fencing e opted out walls install last year that OI ignated $5 millio tire retrofit bu planning adm to this pr

Miller said had not been s

"Bead and Jev show" will be pro-noon to 5 p.m. Craft Center, 1 Road, Cleveland will show how sorts of accessorie

SATURDA

Lynda Nossaman, a nurse practitioner in neurology, examines Teela Kelly's muscle strength. Teela, 9, started having epileptic seizures at age 3, when she was briefly hospitalized at MetroHealth Medical Center.

will be all you drink pasta, wing soda. Cost is $15; will be donated

5-8 p.m. at Aces 6600 Biddulph 1

The Brooklyn ents Club will I tion: New York o

Hospital also helped problem with schoo

SUNDAY—lighters will be f free Summer Co Park 6:30-8:30 1

By David Plata Staff Writer

Santiago, 37, pleaded not guilty to a 27-count indictment, including aggravated murder and at least a dozen counts of rape. He is being held without bond.

will accept no plea bargaining in the case, and will seek the death penalty.

Cuyahoga County Prose-cutor Bill Mason has said he Teela Kelly has been meeting regularly for the past several years with a pediatric neurol-ogy practitioner.

The case was assigned to Common Pleas Court Judge Janet Burnside. A trial date

It's all part of her care at MetroHealth Medical Center, where the 9-year-old girl was first hospitalized at age 3 with epileptic seizures.

And Teela, who has idiopathic epilepsy, meaning doctors have found no tumor or other underlying cause for her seizures, recently received more help — of a kind that doesn't usually come from a hospital.

An attorney in the hospital's Family Advo-cacy Program wrote school officials, insisting that Teela, who was falling behind at school be placed in special education classes.

"Sometimes it takes an attorney to put the fear into the school district to do what they're supposed to be doing," said Mallory Curran, a Legal Aid Society lawyer also working for the Now, thanks to a four-year, $500,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the pilot program will be expanded to several satellite locations and undergoing a name change. It now will be called the Community Action Program.

people read freely at the Max Wohl ties Center, 4506

WEDNESDA rine Kohl, Lake

With a $500,000 match from local corpora-See HOSPITAL, page A5 tery historian, v Brooklyn Historia 7 p.m. meeting seum, 4442 Ridga will have a talk an on "Industrialis

meaning families

High School. "But my dad loves his job, and I'm really proud of him."

Lucarelli, 17, the daughter of Vince Lucarelli, an officer with the Cleveland Division of Police Sixth District, was one of three students who received $1,000 for college on Friday from the West Park Cleveland Police and Fire Fighters Memorial Fund.

The Aug. 31 death of Cleveland police Detective Jonathan "A.J." Schroeder brings to 20 the number of police and firefighters killed in action who lived or worked in the West Park neighborhood.

Set for 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Heroes Run will not only raise money for the memorial fund but also reinforce the public's responsibility to honor the risk police and firefighters take each time they report for duty and the unwavering fear their families face.

See EVENT, page A2 ing Cleveland and the grieving families they left behind.

Fairview Hospi free forum on l

option fo in, 7-8:30

for Westlake. Dr. will discuss

IJ.

invasive back su (877) 234-FITT.

steps off on Sunday Cleveland Heroes Run

Week with a pro MONDAY – ican Civil Libertic phis Ave.

had not been set.

Police say Santiago shot Schroeder, also 37, on Aug. 30 as he and a dozen other police officers tried to arrest him on rape and burglary charges.

Santiago fired twice See TRIAL, page A7

for many

Sports People anteresting Folks." based on the "per dents" of La (216) 941-0160.

Their families remember them daily, but organizers of the annual Heroes Run want everyone to never forget those who gave their lives protect-

Runners who haven't al- line of duty.

Gallagher

for judicial candidates What's in a name? In Cuyahoga County, having the right name has been the key elective office. But not all holders of that "right name" are Ambrose A Of

That is especially true of Common Pleas Court candidate Christine Russo, 41, of Strongsville, who until just recently practiced law under her family name of Agnello. She is a Russo by marriage and that branch of the Russos is not remotely related to the Russos who have provided extensive service to this community. Hers is a blatant attempt to grab a judgeship for which she is not qualified. She has been reprimanded by a judge for missing court dates. Clients have complained that she did not represent their best interests. She has been embroiled in drug allegations. Questions about her professional and personal conduct are serious enough that we suggest she withdraw from the race. But as of Sun News' presstime, she had not done that. Judges should be above reproach. They are an elite group that should mirror the best we as a community have to offer. reated equal.

tee, which talks to community groups about how the court system works. She also is working with a new pilot diversion program for drug users and prostitutes. She presides over the mental health docket. She is an active member of many community organizations and is a board member of the AIDS Task Force of Greater Cleveland and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This is a candidate who will bring honor to the Common Pleas Court. Part of that elite group includes Russo's opponent, Judge Joan Synenberg, 49, of the Cleveland Municipal Court. After a long and notable career as a trial attorney, Synenberg was appointed to the bench in January 2005 and was elected to the post last November. She has become active in the court's Expungement Awareness Program and the Town Hall Commitbility of such pitfalls. While Cuyahoga County voters have the most to lose in the usso-Synenberg race by ignoring the facts and simply electing name, this is not the only judicial contest that holds the possi-

We urge voters not to confuse Kathleen Ann Sutula, who serves re-election, with her cousin John Sutula, who does not.

Incumbent Judge Kathleen Ann Sutula, 53, of Seven Hills, is opposed by attorney Suzanne Blum, 41, of Pepper Pike. Blum is woefully unprepared to be a judge. She hasn't practiced law in years and works once a month as a volunteer magistrate in Shaker Heights. We'll stick with the experienced Sutula, although we hope she will work on her judicial temperament by controlling the manner in which she speaks to parties on both sides of the cases. A little less anger and a little more respect would serve the court well.

Judge John Sutula, 55, of Solon, is seeking re-election to his second term. His performance has been lackluster, and some of his lenient sentences have raised plenty of eyebrows. He is opposed by Marilyn Cassidy, 52, of Shaker Heights. An assistant county prosecutor, Cassidy has experience in both civil and criminal law and as a former nurse, has the communication skills Sutula lacks. Cassidy is the better choice.

In another "name game" race, John P. O'Donnell and John F. Corrigan are battling for an open seat on the bench. O'Donnell, 41, of Lakewood, is a former Common Pleas judge who was ousted in 2005 by yet another "name" — Gallagher. He was an acceptable judge known for his timely rulings. His docket was also one of the most efficient. Corrigan, 45, of Bay Village is an attorney in private practice and probably would serve well, but O'Donnell has some experience on the bench. Judge Dick Ambrose, 53, of Westlake is opposed by assistant county prosecutor Laura J. Gallagher, 45, of Strongsville. The voters can't go wrong in this race. Both candidates are extremely well-qualified. Ambrose, appointed to the bench two years ago, has the well-earned respect of his fellow jurists. Galycars agher has been an attorney and magistrate for nearly 20 years.

She is bright and well-spoken and would make a fine judge. But Ambrose has served exceptionally well. We see no reason Hollie Gallagher, 37, of Shaker Heights is running opposite

No closina costs

Hospital

from page Al

kind support from roHealth and Legal Ai new program will be f at $1.27 million. tions and foundations, and in-kind support from Met-[Aid, funded lot of social issues," said E. Harry Walker, director "We run into a lot of problems trying to deliver medica care and having to deal with a care for interest of the care." Community Health. "A lot of it is beyond what a social worker can do." MetroHealth's pected to start in October, eventually will be at about nine locations. Over the next two years, plans are to nuc three attorneys, a paralegal program, ex-art in October, population; MetroHealth Buckeye, which serves a large elderly population; and MetroHealth Broadway, which serves many children and many re-entry patients, including people coming out of half-way houses and prisons. ferty Health Center, Spanish-English, b

lawyer will help a 50-percent Spanish-speaking population; MetroHealth hree attorner, and a social worker.

Walker said the first three locations will be at McCaflocations will be at McCafbilingual school," uyuus daughter into special educa-tion classes. Officials at Or-tion realmatic brain injury - not the huding rall-way houses ...

Barbara Leadbetter, 1cc.

mother, said she "kept going and forth with the her to get her aducamother

Curran said Leadbetter did a "great job" advocating for her daughter.

private school program, in-cluding swimming and field trips, so she retains what she Teela also is in a year-round learns during the year.

Curran said Leadbetter became well-known in her neighborhood — the area of West 25th Street and Detroit Avenue — for sticking up for her daughter. So much so that she'll work as a volunteer parent mentor at McCafferty, ent mentor at McCafferty, where her family receives primary health care.

Look for Muckraker to return in next week's edi

INTO THE REGISTER TODAY. AND SUICIDE PREVENTION. HELP US TO JIGHT" ON DEPRESSION LIGHT WALK "SHINE THE

SPEA

Suicide Prevention Education Alliance UniversityHosp
HealthSystel
Department of Psychi UniversityHosp HealthSyste

at The Cleveland Metroparks Zoo 7:00 PM Check in • 7:45 PM Walk Rain or Shine SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 30, 2

Proceeds to benefit Suicide Prevention Education Alliance (SPEA) - formerly known as AFSP

www.helppreventsuicide.org 216-464-3471

