

COMMUNITIES

From staff reports

CLEVELAND

Student summit starts today

More than 200 students from Cleveland public high schools are expected to attend the fourth annual Youth Empowerment Summit today at the Cleveland Museum of Art. Lloyd Trotter, a Cleveland native and CEO of General Electric Consumer and Industrial, will speak before students attend a career fair and learn about resume writing and interview skills. The students will get more detailed instruction March 22, and then will make presentations on various careers April 7.

-11

Society gets grant for clinic

The Legal Aid Society of Cleveland has received a $65,000 grant from the Internal Revenue Service to continue its Low Income Taxpayer Clinic during 2005. The society's clinic, one of seven in the state, will help low-income taxpayers involved in disputes with the IRS and educate people for whom English is a second language on tax rights and responsibilities. The federal grant program, now in its seventh year, encourages the creation of clinics across the country. The IRS awarded about $7.5 million in grants for 2005.